The large portion of boys and girls of all ages in the audiences witnessing the Irwin Bros.' Real Wild West performances, demonstrates that the attraction which will be seen in Ogden, Saturday, July 11, is a valuable factor in their education.

The frontiersman and the cowboy have been heroic figures in blazing the way for the path of empire. They have made possible the Empire of the West and their deeds will always illumine pages of our history. Their daring and hazardous life, their al most daily conflicts with the Indians and in many instances their self-sac rifice in saving helpless women and children from the cruelty of the redman have enshrouded them in a he roic atmosphere that will always ap peal to the liberty-loving American. The Real Wild West of the Irwin Brothers faithfully portrays, far bet ter than any attraction on the road today, the real life of the early West In the immense arena and without any obstructions to mar the view these scenes are truthfully enacted afternoon and evening. The cut-and dried three-ring circus atmosphere is happily missing. For two hours an absorbing drama of the life of our once vast frontier holds audiences with tense interest and time and again the thrilling feats of cowboy cowgirl and Indian bring the specta tors to their feet in wonder and admiration.-Advertisement,

FOREST MEN GOIN BOISE TO TESTIFY IN RATE CASE

O. M. Butler, of the silviculture de partment of the forest service, has gone to Boise, Idaho, where he will be a witness in the rate case against the Oregon Short Line company which will be heard in the Gem state capital July 8, by the interstate commerce commission.

The forest service department was instrumental in getting the question before the commission, as the government has a large trace of timber in the Boise and Payette section that could be marketed were it not, as alleged, that the railroad rate is so The foresters say that the high. rate is not only practically prohibitive against shipping the timber, but that it is also discriminative in that long hauls are being made at a lower freight rate.

It is expected that Mr. Butler and acting District Forester A. C. Cain, the latter being in Idaho at this time, will meet District Forester E. A. Sherman at Boise who will accompany them home for a short visit with the foresters. Mr. Sherman will return to Washington Immediately after his Ogden visit.

GEO. ADE'S FABLE OF "THE GOOD FAIRY"

A comical story of a society woman who tried to uplift the poor. Once there was a broad girl who had nothing to do except the twoby-four midget known as her husband, so she decided to help the poor. She thought it was a big help to the owly and uncultured to see what a real razmataz lady was like, so when she was all hooked up behind, she galloped forth to do things to the When she arrived in the tenement district, all the little tuffies between the switch track and the city dump rallied round the Queen and small gave her three hearty cheers. The little dears had been to the movies and they sure knew how to do honor to a regular sure-enough Queen. When she called on Mrs. McGinnis and told her it was a crime to have children, she sure started something.
